DISCUSSION ITEMS

- A. Stormwater Discussion — Tim Carlaw & Michael Murray, Public Works

Department

Tim Carlaw, Storm Drainage Utility Engineer & Michael Murray, Associate Storm Drainage Engineer of the City of Auburn Public Works Department talk about the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System. Tim Carlaw talks about how the NPDES is the EPA's way of enforcing the Clean Water Act. Michael Murray states the permit has required code updates. Why it's coming to the Tree Board is because the requirements for code updates are to increase the tree canopy in Auburn.

Chairperson Bryce Landrud asks if they see improvements or changes with their policies that they have talked about. Tim states that he is unsure as they are not necessarily looking for certain data when following these policies of the public works department. He does state that there has been great improvement within the Storm department. Chairperson Bryce stated that their graph is a good reminder that our rain doesn't come when we need it in the state of Washington.

Tim talks about how the developers have to follow certain codes with regard to storm water, trees, and urban forestry. He states that the standards are becoming more strict.

B. Masterbuilders & Tree Planting Discussions--Park Planning Manager Thaniel Gouk

Matt Haight with MasterBuilders spoke to the Tree Board about a tree planting initiative, "Planting a Better Tomorrow." This initiative came from their member group, and they wanted to put out to the public that they're not just clear-cutting trees when developing. They would like to participate with cities throughout the region and help assist in adding to the tree canopy in Washington State. They provide the trees, and work with each city to find an event where they can get trees planted in the parks. Matt is meeting with Park Planning Manager Thaniel Gouk, Park Maintenance Manager Stefanie Coleman and others in the Parks Department regarding event planning for a potential Tree Planting event in September/October.
